Couns. allegedly misled on $500M development deal

Brampton council. City's lawyer says Brampton's action on the land deal 'was totally proper'

Brampton councillors allege they were misled when they voted on one of the biggest projects in the city's history, after reading court documents in a $28.5-million lawsuit against the city.

Three councillors say that they approved a controversial $500-million development project — the expansion of Brampton's city hall and related developments — on the understanding that the winning developer, Dominus Construction, had paid for land that was not owned by the city. But in fact, the city paid $480,000 to an option for a parcel of property.

The councillors say they did not know of the city's role in the land purchase until this week, when they asked the city to provide them with stacks of court documents filed by Inzola Group, another developer. Inzola filed a lawsuit against the city after it was disqualified from the development, alleging it was unfairly removed from the process.

Change of plans

The City of Brampton has confirmed that Dominus Construction, which won the bid competition to expand city hall and redevelop part of the city core, will no longer be the city's long-term partner in the project.

Now, the city stands to lose its $480,000 deposit if the land at the heart of the controversy isn't purchased for $2 million by October, according to court documents filed in relation to the lawsuit.

"I feel sick to my stomach since reading the court documents," Coun. John Sprovieri told Torstar News Service.

The city's lawyer in the case, Steven Stieber, sent Torstar an email response Thursday, saying he is unable to address specific questions about the case as it is still in the courts.

"I would be pleased to do so at a later date as the answers to these questions will make it clear to you and your readers the city's action in respect of the First Choice lands … was totally proper."

Dominus has said that it followed all of the rules outlined by the city in its bid documents.

The court documents include April pre-hearing testimony by senior city staffer Julian Patteson. He was asked by Inzola's lawyers about information given to councillors in 2011 when they voted to select Dominus Construction.

"What you were telling council was that Dominus had in fact secured those lands, correct?" Inzola's lawyer asked Patteson, referring to a 2011 staff report to council that he co-authored.

"Yes," responded Patteson, who was the city's commissioner of buildings and property management during the bidding process.

In fact, the city, on behalf of Dominus, had to pay a $480,000 option to secure the lands.

"The city council at this Aug. 10, 2011, meeting, city council wasn't advised that the option payment for the First Choice lands was being made by the city, correct?" the lawyer asks.

Patteson responds: "They weren't advised that the city was funding it."

"Up until today, council hasn't been advised that the city funded the option payment?" Patteson is asked.

"That's correct," Patteson responds. TORSTAR NEWS SERVICE

Ongoing investigation

Result of Ford probe won't come till after election

Toronto voters will likely go to the polls in October without knowing the result of an investigation into city-hall efforts by Mayor Rob Ford and Coun. Doug Ford to help clients of their company.

City integrity commissioner Janet Leiper did not finish the investigation in time to bring a report to the final council meeting of the term next week.

Leiper's term expires in two weeks. She said the reports she placed on the agenda of next week's meeting are her last.

"Any ongoing investigations will be handed over to the incoming integrity commissioner, Val Jepson, who begins on Sept. 8," Leiper said in an email.

Cut builders' takeover of streets: Councillor

Motion. Josh Matlow says making it harder for developers to block right of way for construction would help ease congestion

Trying to get from one place to another in Toronto can sometimes feel like a nightmare.

But Coun. Josh Matlow says the key to easing some of the city's epic congestion, for drivers, pedestrians and cyclists alike, is to make it harder for developers to take over public space for their construction.

Matlow will bring forward a motion at city council's Aug. 25 meeting for city staff to report on the feasibility of not letting developers occupy the public right of way during construction projects, or raising fees to make it more difficult for them to do so.

Quoted

'While some keep using rhetoric about the war on cars or the war on bikes, this has an impact on everyone."

Coun. Josh Matlow

"While some keep using rhetoric about the war on cars or the war on bikes, this has an impact on everyone who wants to use Toronto's streets and sidewalks and bike lanes," says Matlow.

"It's in our face every single day, and residents are left to live perpetually in a construction zone."

Just this month, merchants at Yonge and Eglinton complained that a busy stretch of Yonge was being closed to traffic for 48 hours over a summer weekend because a crane that was being used at a condo construction site was being taken down.

Matlow, who calls the motion a "no-brainer," says he realizes that the long-term solution lies in improving public transit but that in the meantime this is a "very clear way" to ease gridlock.

"Right now there's actually incentives for them given how easy it is to get the permits, how cheap it is for them to just take over a public street for as long as they want. We need to say that's not right," Matlow says.

Brad Lamb, president of Brad J. Lamb Realty and Lamb Development Corp., says the motion is "asinine" and would "choke off development" that has created billions of dollars.

"It is the goal of a developer to not use public land.... The only reason why we do it is out of absolute necessity. In other words, the building cannot be built otherwise," he says.

He says the bigger issue is the need for a better transit system. TORSTAR NEWS SERVICE

7 TOP BIKE SHARE FACTS

The city has released data on Bike Share Toronto, offering insight into how riders use the service and even how many calories they burn.

LUKE SIMCOE/METRO
luke.simcoe@metronews.ca

Last April, the city took over the Bike Share program from the beleaguered company Bixi, nesting the service under the local parking authority and outsourcing its operation to Alta Bicycle Share. With the new management came a commitment to transparency, culminating in last week's release of a treasure trove of data about the program.

"We're committed to getting the best experience for the customer," said Scott Hancock, Alta's general manager. "And when you give that data to users, they might come back to you with a different perspective."

Contained within the cache is a wealth of information about how people use Bike Share and its 80 stations. What makes it unique, however, is that it also includes the origin and destination for every single trip taken on the network. Whereas other studies tend to count cyclists at a specific point — for example, the city counts the number of bikes at various intersections — the Bike Share data reveals where cyclists are actually going. Between January and July, users took 285,384 trips on Bike Share.

Metro delved into the data, looking for trends, patterns or interesting stories. We also shared our findings with academics and cycling advocates in the city to get their take on the data.

1 Popular routes

The most common trip made by Bike Share users is from between Gould and Mutual streets — adjacent to Ryerson University — to Front and Yonge near Union Station and the Hockey Hall of Fame. To date, Bike Share riders have made the trip 1,096 times.

The reverse trip, from Union to Ryerson, has been made 980 times.

Dr. Beth Savan, head of the Cycling Think and Do Tank (torontocycling.org) at the University of Toronto, believes the data shows users are engaging in "multi-modal transportation," getting off the GO Train or TTC at Union and riding Bike Share to the university. She also speculated that a lack of bicycle parking near Ryerson acts as an incentive for students and faculty to use Bike Share rather than their own bicycles. "It's super-congested at Ryerson," she said. "It can take 15 minutes just to find parking for my bike."

2 Late-night commute

Another interesting finding is that roughly 15 per cent of Bike Share trips are made after 9:30 p.m.

"That one shocked us," Hancock said. "There's a third commute between about 9:30 p.m. and 11:30 p.m. It's larger than we thought and definitely says that the city is busier for longer than we think."

Hancock suggested that many Bike Share riders may feel more comfortable travelling at times when fewer cars are on the road.

3 An uphill battle

The fact that slightly more riders go from Ryerson to the Front Street station also alludes to one of the more amusing stories to emerge from the Bike Share data: overall, there is more traffic heading south than north. The reason why, according to Hancock, is simple.

"Toronto's got a little bit of a hill," he said.

4 Expansion in its future?

All those interviewed by Metro felt the data made a business case for expanding Bike Share and integrating it more closely with the TTC. Stations near the network's periphery — for example, Sherbourne/Wellesley, Trinity/Front and Queen/Ossington — have a high volume of activity and a diversity of destinations, suggesting a demand outside the service's current boundaries.

"One of the functions it really addresses is diagonal trips across the grid," observed Cycle Toronto director Jared Kolb. "Bike Share can extend transit by filling in those gaps."

Cycle Toronto lobbied the city to assume ownership of the bike-sharing program after Bixi announced it was on the verge of bankruptcy late in 2013. Now that the service is in public hands, Kolb is optimistic about its future.

6,351,682

The estimated number of calories burned by Bike Share riders in June 2014.

"(The data is) fascinating. It actually tells us a lot about Toronto."

Dylan Reid, editor at Spacing Magazine

486

The number of trips made in 2014 by Bike No. T01472, the city's most-ridden Bike Share bike, which has visited 79 of the city's 80 Bike Share stations. Riders may have been lured in by a new seat.

100,445

The total carbon offset (in pounds) for Bike Share users in June 2014.

"If we view Bike Share as an integral part of our transit system, the conversation changes around whether it needs to turn a profit.... Nowhere in the world does transit pay for itself."

Cycle Toronto director Jared Kolb

CUSTOMER AND SERVICE IMPROVEMENTS ARE TAKING SHAPE AT THE TTC

ANDY BYFORD
CEO
TORONTO TRANSIT COMMISSION

This week saw us reach a major milestone in our mission to modernize the TTC.

The second platform at Union Station opened to much fanfare and acclaim from customers who appreciate the additional space and vastly improved environment at our third busiest subway station, after Bloor-Yonge and St George stations.

Our project team will now refurbish the original platform and the concourse area to deliver a world class facility in time for next summer's Pan Am Games.

Next up is the introduction of our new streetcar on Aug. 31 on the 510 Spadina. Final preparations are well in hand to ensure all goes smoothly that day.

Modernization of the TTC will deliver more than new vehicles and stations. Our Five-Year Corporate Plan includes a comprehensive review of processes to make them customer led – and an all-out push to transform the prevailing culture at the TTC so that you feel valued on your trip.

A lot of our work to date has been behind the scenes to improve the efficient management of the TTC and to adopt modern business practices. Our initial focus has been to drive up underlying performance and to deliver "quick wins" while we work on the big ticket items that require time and funding to achieve.

Last week, the joint TTC/City Task Force to secure long-term, sustainable funding from the province and Ottawa began its work. Along with the City Manager, I pitched the TTC's case for a return to 50-50 funding to senior Queen's Park staff in a forerunner to similar sessions with politicians and senior public servants in Ottawa. With competing pressures on funding, it won't be an easy task, but it's an argument that we must win. Union Station is an excellent example of where all orders of government have come together, this time through Waterfront Toronto, to pay for key transit projects.

My strong view is that TTC riders should not have to wait for major projects such as new transit lines to come on-stream, important though they are. Action to improve transit in Toronto is needed right now. To that end, we have identified nine opportunities to deliver short- to medium-term service improvements for debate at the TTC Board and City Council. If the required funding can be found, our proposals will reduce crowding, add more express bus services and improve the underlying reliability of our service.

Through delivery of major projects, by overhauling the management of the TTC and by delivering tangible improvements now, we can make a real difference to our customer service and deliver a transit system that makes Toronto proud.

EMPLOYEE PROFILE

Name:	Position:	Years of Service:
Sami Jibril	Janitor	3

As one of the youngest employees at the TTC, the apprenticeship program has been very encouraging to further myself in this company. It has allowed me to experience other departments as well, such as rail track construction and vehicle repairs. I have also been a competitive distance runner for nine years and part of an elite training group called the Athletics Toronto Club. I am proud to be a Silver Medalist in the 2014 Canadian Half Marathon Championship. My hope is to compete in the Olympics with the support of TTC behind me.

WEEKEND LINE 1 CLOSURE – BLOOR TO EGLINTON STATIONS

This weekend, on Saturday, Aug. 23 and Sunday, Aug. 24, there will be no subway service between Bloor and Eglinton Stations on Line 1, due to ongoing signal and track upgrades. Frequent shuttle buses will operate between Bloor and Eglinton stations, with wheel-trans available for customers requiring accessible connection. Regular subway service resumes on Monday, Aug. 25.

MEET YOUR NEW RIDE, TORONTO! Fare payment options

We're just over a week away from launching the new low-floor streetcar on the 510 Spadina line. On August 31, customers will get their chance to ride the new modern, accessible, air conditioned vehicle. As an added bonus, the TTC will be introducing Proof of Payment (POP) to the 510 Spadina Line to speed-up boarding when the new streetcar rolls out. Here are the POP payment options:

Pass Holders: Customers with a Metropass, Day Pass or Weekly Pass will be able to board the new streetcar through any door. Your Pass is your POP receipt.

Tokens: Customers using tokens will need to pay at an on-board or curbside fare vending machine to receive a POP receipt. Your POP receipt is also your transfer.

TTC Ticket Holders: Customers using tickets are required to have their ticket stamped at a ticket validator located beside the on-board or curbside fare vending machines. Your stamped ticket is your POP receipt.

Transfer holders: Customers with a transfer can board the streetcar through any door. Your transfer is your POP receipt. Always get a transfer where you pay your fare.

Cash: The fare vending machines accept coins only (change is not provided), and will issue a POP receipt. Your POP receipt is also your transfer.

Curbside Fare Vending Machines: Customers can also purchase fares and validate tickets at new curbside fare vending machines at busier stops. Fare vending machines accept coins only, change is not provided.

What is POP?

With the introduction of the new streetcar, proof-of-payment, or POP, will become the norm on all streetcar routes. The 501 Queen streetcar already uses the POP model, allowing customers to board any door, provided they have a Metropass or transfer to show they've paid their fare.

All-door boarding helps speed up the time it takes at a stop. This week, the TTC launched a dedicated fare inspection unit to conduct POP inspections on Queen, educating and informing customers about the need for proof-of-payment.

Once POP expands to the 510 Spadina route on August 31, Fare Inspectors will be riding both lines. For more information on POP, visit ttc.ca.

‘Tehranto’ a refuge for gay Iranians

Escaping persecution. Toronto welcomes LGBTQ people better than anywhere else, says former translator and photographer

Resettling in T.O.

Since 2012, more than 200 queer Iranian refugees have resettled to Canada from Turkey through Ottawa’s government-sponsored refugee program — most of them in Toronto for its diverse LGBTQ community and the growing Iranian diaspora at large.

It’s no Mecca, but Toronto is now a city venerated by many queer Iranians who have adopted it as their home.

A month ago, 26-year-old Tehran native Elina Azari followed other queer refugees stranded in Turkey and joined the growing Iranian LGBTQ community for a new life in what some call “Tehranto.”

“I’d heard a lot of good things about Toronto and how it’s better than any other countries in welcoming LGBTQ people,” said Azari, a former translator and photographer who self-identifies as a lesbian.

“Iran is not a safe place for gay people. I’d stayed in Turkey for two years and two months. Canada has adopted gay marriages for many years.

“It speaks a lot about how it treats gay people. I’m so happy to be here, to be who I am.”

In fact, Toronto’s reputation among the Iranians was so good that Hasti Khalilian, a transsexual woman from the Esfahan province in Iran, passed an opportunity to be relocated to the United States and picked Canada instead.

“There is a lot of support from the Canadian government to help refugees integrate. The (LGBTQ) community here seems to be more supportive to trans people,” said Khalilian, 29, who spent two years in Isparta, Turkey, before she was issued a permanent resident visa to Canada in 2012.

“In Canada, there are more financial support allowances and health care to assist these newcomers. Now, we have a more-established Iranian LGBTQ community here. People are drawn to Toronto and it has this ripple effect,” said Arsham Parsi, who launched the advocacy group Iranian Railroad for Queer Refugees in 2008.

“I only knew two other gay Iranians when I came in 2006. You know a community has grown big enough when you have one group not talking to another group,” Khalilian added with a chuckle.

Homosexuality is a crime in Iran and still warrants public executions by law, he said.

School board

Toronto trustees running amok, says former chair

A handful of Toronto public school trustees are running afoul of spending policies and other board procedures and the province needs to step in, says the former chair of Canada’s largest school board.

Posting on Facebook, Chris Bolton said since he resigned suddenly from the board mid-June “it seems to have been drifting into areas (of) not just election silliness, but downright interference.” He accuses unnamed trustees of “dictating expense policies against the direction of the board and province.”

Current board chair Mari Rutka said that “with the exception of having to unexpectedly appoint a new trustee” to replace Bolton in his downtown Trinity-Spadina ward, “there is nothing that trustees are now dealing with that is not part of the work of the board.”

Stintz speaks out on dropping out

Tough choices. Former TTC chair takes a look at her decision, why her candidacy struggled and why many think she's too similar to John Tory

Former TTC chair Karen Stintz talked to Torstar News Service in her city-hall office after announcing on Thursday that she is ending her campaign to become Toronto's next mayor.

When did you decide to quit your mayoral campaign?
There was no one definitive moment; it was more of a process. But when I saw the last Forum poll that showed voters leaving Olivia (Chow) and going to John (Tory), I saw that voters were moving and they were not moving to me. It took a while to come to terms with it; I talked myself back in and out of it a few times. My husband and my father were adamant that I stay. I wrestled with the decision and probably about a week ago I came to the conclusion that it was not practical to continue and then started telling people.

Was it a tough decision?
Yes. I could see how to fix the city and I had experience doing it and I thought I had a compelling story about the combination of leadership, experience and solutions for the challenges that we face as a city. In February, entering the race, I knew it would be a difficult race but I thought I could make my case. But every day was just harder and harder, and when my numbers didn't move, and I wasn't getting momentum, it was harder to get volunteers, harder to get money, harder to get my message out.

Why did your candidacy not take off?
I struggle with it. Certainly I grew as a candidate: I got better in debates, I sharpened my message. We had a good message; we had a great team. But it was a full slate of candidates, and I was running against some big names.

Karen Stintz announces her withdrawal from the mayoral race at city hall on Thursday. AARON HARRIS/TORSTAR NEWS SERVICE

Was there any policy or performance that caused you any problems? Your changing position on the Scarborough subway?
I don't think so. I believe in the Scarborough subway from a city-building perspective. My issue was always funded transit; it wasn't motive transit. I certainly think I became a better candidate through the process. I felt I was hitting my stride, but it wasn't translating into momentum.

Many people say your politics and views were too similar to John Tory's. Did that hurt you?
I have a different narrative: I have experience on council, I had answers (and) solutions, I had stood up to Rob Ford. I had a very compelling narrative that was unique from John Tory.

Tory seems to have momentum. Who do you think will be the next mayor?
Honestly, when it comes to anything involving Rob Ford, I don't predict. He defies every law known to man including gravity so I just don't make predictions.

What's in your future?
It's not going to be in politics, that I can guarantee.

You have had an amazing 11 years. How are you going to look back?
I want to look back with pride. Part of why I wanted to be pragmatic about this is I didn't want my legacy to be, 'I finished the race at five per cent.' I fought for more than that for the last 11 years and I've built a strong community and I've contributed to the city and I've fought for funded transit — I wanted that to be my legacy.

Who are you going to vote for?
I don't know.

Liberia. Hundreds line up for rice in slum sealed off to stop spread of Ebola

Government officials handed out bags of rice and sachets of drinking water Thursday to residents of an impoverished slum in Liberia's capital where tens of thousands of people have been barricaded in an effort to stop the spread of Ebola.

International aid workers warned that more help was needed as the country battles not only the virulent disease but also hunger as travel restrictions have blocked food from getting to parts of the capital.

In West Point, hundreds of residents lined up to receive government provisions a day after authorities put up barbed-wire barricades and enforced a blockade of the area that kept market traders from entering or leaving.

Prices were skyrocketing inside the community on a peninsula, with the price of water quadrupling in a matter of days in the slums where there is no clean running water amid steamy temperatures.

"At the moment, West Point is stuck at a standstill and is in an anarchy situation," said Moses Browne, who works for aid group Plan International in Liberia.

On Wednesday, residents of West Point clashed with police and soldiers hours after the neighbourhood was sealed off, furious that they were being blamed and cut off from markets and jobs. The situation calmed down on Thursday, though fears remain about how much food and water will be brought into the peninsula.

The World Food Program said it would also begin distributing food in the area in the coming days.

Alleged voting fraud. So far, week-long protests calling for prime minister's ouster remain peaceful

Pakistan's parliament on Thursday rejected calls for Prime Minister Nawaz Sharif's resignation as unconstitutional, despite massive anti-government protests just outside the assembly in the capital Islamabad.

The resolution, supported by nearly every opposition party, marked a defeat for cricketer-turned-politician Imran Khan and popular cleric Tahir-ul-Qadri, who have led week-long protests from the eastern city of Lahore to the gates of Parliament calling for Sharif's ouster over alleged voting fraud.

The assembly rejected the protesters' demands for Sharif's resignation and the dissolution of parliament, vowing to "uphold the supremacy of the constitution."

The U.S. Embassy appeared to support the assembly, saying "we strongly oppose any efforts to impose extra-constitutional change," while encouraging the parties to "resolve differences through peaceful dialogue in ways that strengthen Pakistan's democratic institutions and rule of law." Tensions rising

- The protests have been peaceful but have raised tensions in the nuclear-armed country of 180 million people with a history of political turmoil and military dictatorships.
- Sharif's election last May marked the first democratic transfer of power since Pakistan was carved out of India in 1947.

Lawyers pour cold water over envoys taking chilly dare

Ice Bucket Challenge.
Memo reaches U.S. ambassador to Israel too late to stop him from participating

Former U.S. president George W. Bush participates in the Ice Bucket Challenge with the help of his wife, Laura Bush, in Kennebunkport, Maine.
COURTESY GEORGE W. BUSH PRESIDENTIAL CENTER/THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

The charity stunt has lured athletes, celebrities, politicians and rock stars and has gone viral on the Internet, but don't look for U.S. diplomats to get in on the fun.

Lawyers at the State Department have banned American ambassadors and other high-profile foreign-service officers from participating in the Ice Bucket Challenge to raise money and awareness for Lou Gehrig's disease.

In a cable to all U.S. diplomatic missions, the lawyers say it runs afoul of federal ethics rules barring officials from using public office for private gain "no matter how worthy the cause."

The diplomatic cable complimented the ALS Association on the success of the Ice Bucket Challenge, which has raised more than $40 million US and attracted a plethora of notable participants, including former U.S. president George W. Bush and television hosts Martha Stewart and Matt Lauer.

But it also pointed out that choosing among worthy charities can be a difficult personal decision that is made "even more difficult when high-ranking State Department personnel ... are asked to participate in charitable fundraising, and concerns about preference and favouritism always arise."

U.S. Ambassador to Israel Daniel Shapiro, who had already participated, challenged U.S. Ambassador to the United Nations Samantha Power to douse herself with ice water for the cause. But by then, Power got the memo.

Charity stunt

$100

The Ice Bucket Challenge involves people videotaping themselves as they dump cold water on their heads, then posting the clips on social media. This is followed by a dare to friends to do the same within 24 hours or donate $100 US to ALS.

Not for us, we're Catholic.
Ohio diocese bars schools from social-media stunt

A Roman Catholic diocese in Ohio is discouraging its 113 schools from participating in the Ice Bucket Challenge to benefit the ALS Association, saying the group's funding of embryonic stem-cell research is "in direct conflict with Catholic teaching."

The diocese said schools could participate, but money raised should be directed to groups such as the John Paul II Medical Research Institute in Iowa City, which conducts "pro-life driven" research, according to its website.

Catholic Church's stance

The Catholic Church relates the use of embryonic stem cells in research to abortion and says it violates the sanctity of human life. The use of adult stem cells in research is not forbidden by Catholic teaching.

A spokeswoman for the ALS Association said donors can ask that their money not pay for embryonic stem-cell research. THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Viral challenge

Bucket stops with U.S. president

Instead of pouring cold water over his head, U.S. President Barack Obama has poured it on the idea of becoming the highest-profile participant of the Ice Bucket Challenge.

Ethel Kennedy, the 86-year-old Kennedy family matriarch, tagged Obama to participate after soaking herself at her family's Massachusetts compound, knowing the president was vacationing nearby. Obama participated financially by donating an undisclosed sum.

War disrupts education

U.S. colleges pull students from overseas programs

Some U.S. colleges are pulling students from overseas study programs in Israel as the Gaza war rages, though the relative calm beyond the immediate battle areas is raising questions in some quarters about why they had to leave.

Colleges say security was the top concern, citing advisories about hazardous travel from the U.S. State Department and from insurance companies.

"On the one hand, we want to introduce students to the dimensions of conflict," said Yehuda Lukacs, director of the Center for Global Education at George Mason University in Virginia. "But this was too much because their safety and security were challenged."

State Department

U.S. concerned after Israel's arrest of American citizen

The U.S. government has raised concerns about Israel's arrest of a Palestinian teenager with American citizenship whose cousin was burned to death by Israeli extremists earlier this summer.

The State Department says it was never notified by Israel after 19-year-old Mohammed Abu Khdeir was arrested at his home in east Jerusalem on July 28. It also says Israel appears to be targeting members of the Abu Khdeir family for arrest.

U.S. officials are concerned that Abu Khdeir, who was born in Baltimore and remains in custody, and his family are being targeted for arrest.

Israel's police spokesman declined to comment.

Key Hamas leaders die in airstrike

Gaza airstrikes. Israeli missile attacks leave three senior Hamas military leaders dead

An Israeli airstrike in Gaza killed three senior Hamas military commanders Thursday, delivering a likely blow to the organization's morale and highlighting the long reach of Israel's intelligence services.

The strike marked further escalation in the conflict — which has claimed the lives of over 2,000 Palestinians and 67 Israelis — following the breakdown of Egyptian-led ceasefire talks earlier this week.

The pre-dawn strike levelled a four-storey house in a densely populated Rafah neighbourhood, killing six, including the three Hamas commanders. At least 20 — four of whom were children — have been killed in 31 airstrikes across Gaza.

Israel said the trio played a key role in Hamas' military capabilities.

Ceasefire resolution to be discussed

Britain, France and Germany are preparing to discuss a possible resolution to establish a sustainable ceasefire in Gaza. Diplomats said any resolution would consist of opening Gaza's borders and getting Israeli security assurances.

Kidnapping of Israelis. Senior leader admits Hamas' involvement

A senior Hamas leader has said the group carried out the kidnapping and killing of three Israeli teens in the West Bank in June — the first time anyone from the Islamic militant group has said it was behind an attack that helped spark the current war in the Gaza Strip.

Saleh Arouri told a conference in Turkey on Wednesday that Hamas' military wing, the al-Qassam Brigades, carried out what he described as a heroic operation hoping to spark a new Palestinian uprising.

"It was an operation by your brothers from the al-Qassam Brigades," he said, adding that Hamas hoped to exchange the youths for Palestinian prisoners held by Israel.

Hamas has repeatedly praised the kidnappings, but Arouri, the group's exiled West Bank leader, is the first member to claim responsibility. Israel has accused Hamas of orchestrating the kidnappings and earlier this week identified Arouri as the mastermind behind a plot to stage an uprising in the West Bank.

Calgary imam calls out ISIS as radical terrorists

Drawing awareness to militants. Imam Syed Soharwardy denounces 'un-Islamic' group whose members 'must be punished'

A prominent Canadian imam intends to draw attention to what he calls the "un-Islamic" beliefs and actions of ISIS in light of the murder of a U.S. journalist. Imam Syed Soharwardy of Calgary plans a 48-hour hunger strike beginning Friday to create awareness about the terrorist group.

Soharwardy, founder of Muslims Against Terrorism and the Islamic Supreme Council of Canada, is condemning the beheading of journalist James Foley.

"I want to let everyone know that ISIS is not a part of (the) Muslim community," said Soharwardy.

The imam says Foley's death and that of thousands of civilians in Syria and Iraq are "crimes against humanity." He predicts the violent activities of ISIS won't remain limited to the Middle East.

"They are actively working and recruiting Muslim youth in Canada," he said.

Last week, Foreign Affairs said it had reports of a Canadian being killed in Iraq. But officials couldn't confirm it was Farah Mohamed Shirdon, a former Calgary man the CBC identified as having gone to fight for the Islamic State of Iraq and Syria. Soharwardy said he is worried that could inspire other youth to follow Shirdon's example.

James Foley's death

Agencies scramble to identify killer

The Islamic militant in a video showing the death of American journalist James Foley took great care to hide his identity, dressing head-to-toe in black, with a mask leaving only his eyes visible.

But police and intelligence services in Britain and the U.S. have many clues as they scramble to identify him, from image analysis and voice-recognition software to social-media postings and testimony from former captives.

The Guardian newspaper quoted a former captive held by the Islamic State group in Raqqa, Syria, as saying he appeared to be one of several British militants — nicknamed "The Beatles" by hostages — charged with guarding prisoners.

Peter Neumann, director of the International Centre for the Study of Radicalization at King's College London, said most of the hundreds of Western militants in Syria have Facebook or Twitter accounts, on which they post pictures of themselves and give away other clues to their origins, such as a favourite soccer team.

Language experts say the masked killer sounds like a man in his 20s who was raised or educated in Britain. THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Tories' Trudeau beat sounds like 'elite, elite'

War of word. Stephen Harper has repeatedly called Justin Trudeau 'elite' — a word that's becoming a popular Conservative put-down for the Liberal leader

In the communications arsenal the Conservatives are building against Liberal Leader Justin Trudeau, the word "elite" is proving to be one of the most popular put-downs.

Prime Minister Stephen Harper has used the word "elite" repeatedly when referring to Trudeau and those around him, part of the narrative the party is building in advance of the 2015 election.

"You can listen to the liberal elites and the liberal media pundits and liberal interest groups and you can hear the plan: tell Canadians there's something new and exciting," Harper said Wednesday in Langley, B.C., referring to Trudeau.

Trudeau's top adviser, Gerry Butts, fired back on Twitter: "My dad mined coal for 40 years in Cape Breton. He'd be proud the prime minister thinks his son's an 'elite.'"

Conservative commentator Stephen Taylor said he would fully expect to see the party circulate photos of the Liberal leader in the vintage Mercedes his father and former PM Pierre left to him.

Still, that's not exactly what the Tories are driving at when they talk about elites, said Taylor, vice-president of digital public affairs at FleishmanHillard.

"Elite is not to say one has more money or better education," he said. "Elite, the way it's used politically in Canada, is to suggest that a person who is running for office might know what's better for your life than you do."

What it boils down to, Taylor added, is the fight for that large pool of middle-class voters who are concerned about their finances at home.

PM announces multimillion-dollar Arctic program in Yukon

Prime Minister Stephen Harper reacts to the temperature of a permafrost ice core at Yukon College in Whitehorse on Thursday. Harper kicked off the first full day of his annual Northern tour with news of a multimillion-dollar Arctic program that will focus on resource development, transportation and shipping, marine-safety technologies and community infrastructure. The federal government is spending $17 million on the program over eight years and is seeking another $65 million from industry over that same time period. ADRIAN WYLD/THE CANADIAN PRESS

Privacy czar: Websites must make privacy policy transparent to customers

All businesses — especially those operating online — should be upfront with customers about their data-collection practices as transactions move into the digital realm, Canada's privacy czar says.

Websites must explain clearly what personal information is collected, how it is used, whether it is disclosed to third parties and for what purpose, federal privacy commissioner Daniel Therrien says in his annual report on the private sector, made public Thursday.

"Without such transparency, customers cannot provide the meaningful consent necessary for a business to collect their personal information," Therrien says. THE CANADIAN PRESS

Harper. Missing, murdered aboriginal women aren't a 'sociological phenomenon'

Prime Minister Stephen Harper says police investigations, not a national inquiry, are the best way to deal with crimes involving missing and murdered aboriginal women.

The death of a 15-year-old aboriginal girl found dumped in Winnipeg's Red River has prompted renewed calls for a national inquiry.

But Harper says most such cases are addressed by the police. He says it's important to keep in mind these are crimes.

"We should not view this as sociological phenomenon," the prime minister said Thursday. "We should view it as crime ... and it needs to be addressed as such."

Judge says no to Florida gay marriage ban

Ban had been added in 2008 vote. A U.S. federal judge rules Florida's ban to be unconstitutional

A federal judge on Thursday declared Florida's ban on same-sex marriage unconstitutional, joining state judges in four counties who have sided with gay couples.

U.S. District Judge Robert L. Hinkle ruled that the ban added to Florida's constitution by voters in 2008 violates the 14th Amendment's guarantees of equal protection and due process. Hinkle issued a stay delaying the effect of his order, meaning no marriage licences will be immediately issued for gay couples.

Hinkle, an appointee of President Bill Clinton, compared bans on gay marriage to the long-abandoned prohibitions on interracial marriage and predicted both would be viewed by history the same way.

"When observers look back 50 years from now, the arguments supporting Florida's ban on same-sex marriage, though just as sincerely held, will again seem an obvious pretext for discrimination," Hinkle wrote. "To paraphrase a civil-rights leader from the age when interracial marriage was struck down, the arc of history is long but it bends toward justice."

Starbucks. Customers buy next patrons' drinks in day-long kindness chain

A woman started an act-of-kindness chain that lasted for hours at a Starbucks drive-thru in Florida.

The woman ordered an iced coffee around 7 a.m. Wednesday in St. Petersburg and asked to pay for the caramel macchiato for the stranger in the car behind her. He returned the favour. The chain kept going all day.

The Tampa Bay Times reports the chain finally ended around 6 p.m. when customer No. 379 pulled up and ordered a regular coffee. Barista Vu Nguyen leaned out the window and explained the chain that started earlier in the day, asking if she'd like to participate. She declined, saying she wanted to pay for only her coffee.

Nguyen says he doesn't believe she understood the concept of paying it forward.

A not-so-sweet end for Twinkies' birthplace

400 jobs cut. Hostess plans to close Illinois bakery where the spongy, cream-filled snack cake was created

Hostess Brands plans to close the suburban Chicago bakery where the Twinkie was invented in 1930, cutting 400 jobs and shuttering a piece of American baking history.

The company said Wednesday it plans to close the Schiller Park bakery in October.

According to the Chicago Sun-Times, Hostess Brands CEO Bill Toler said the company is closing the plant as it tries to improve efficiency.

The plant's employees were stunned by the news, said Donald Woods, president of the Bakery, Confectionery, Tobacco Workers and Grain Millers International Union Local 1. Workers had been told the company planned to keep the plant open long term, he said.

The bakery had just reopened a little over a year ago as Twinkies returned to store shelves after Hostess filed for bankruptcy in 2012.

BITE INTO THIS WEEK'S LISTICLE

THE METRO LIST

Mike Benhaim
metronews.ca

1 Piece of Cake. Rumer Willis, daughter of Bruce and Demi, posted an Instagram picture of the gun-shaped birthday cake mom got for her 26th. It read "Happy birthday Rumer ... Bang Bang," referencing her role in the Tarantino-inspired stage musical For the Record, where she sings Cher's Bang, Bang (My Baby Shot Me Down). Some condemned the image, but I think the message would have been far more inappropriate on just a regular cake.

2 Out of bounds. Not only were the last two top NBA draftees both from Canada, but Anthony Bennett and Andrew Wiggins were both chosen by the Cavaliers, perennial bottom-dwellers since LeBron James took his "talents to South Beach." Now that James has returned, the Canucks are heading to a subpar Minnesota Timberwolves team in exchange for superstar Kevin Love. The only reason they're not angry is, well, they're Canadian.

3 Word up. After extensive research, Oxford Dictionary unveiled this year's freshman class of terms to be legitimized in the English language. Because once a slang phrase infiltrates popular culture, we've no choice but to embrace it. So you are now reading a "listicle" (list/article) containing "new" vocabulary such as: hot mess, YOLO, cray, side-boob and the one everyone's using at the office: Amazeballs! Remember when reading a dictionary made you smarter?

4 No country for ol' Taylor. Taylor Swift surprised everyone by launching her new album, 1989, this week. Apparently, the revelation that the singer-songwriter, whose job is to make music, was for two years secretly making music, left fans stunned. The new single Shake it Off is not country but pure, unapologetic pop and characteristically catchy. Swift has endured all the criticism and mockery (some of it from me) that comes with being artistically transparent, only to emerge as a woman who refuses to be defeated. So, I concede. I am now officially a "Swiftie."

5 Cold play. Earlier this year, I reserved comment on Gwyneth Paltrow's breakup from musician Chris Martin because, frankly, I didn't care. But I did enjoy how they circumvented the word "divorce" by calling it a "conscious un-coupling." So much easier for the kids. But now, just months later, Martin is reported to be seeing Hunger Games star Jennifer Lawrence. The two are believed to be consciously coupling like crazy. Gwyneth, I'm here for you. And I'm conscious.

6 Pour it on. This week's best trend was #IceBucketChallenge. What began as a campaign to raise awareness for Amyotrophic Lateral Sclerosis (ALS), a.k.a. Lou Gehrig's disease, became social media's cause du jour. Some denounced the challenge as gimmicky, but it has enhanced public consciousness of a devastating illness and raised over $20 million at last count, so perhaps it's time everyone had an ice-cold awakening.

All creatures great and small

From baby crocs to giant snails, everyone gets a weigh-in at the London Zoo

Silverback gorillas, rare baby crocodiles and giant snails were just a handful of the animals weighed and measured at ZSL London Zoo's big weigh-in 2014.

Ellish the female giraffe is the zoo's heaviest animal, weighing in at just under a tonne.

Just right

"We can check that our animals are not underweight, that they're not overweight and we can just ensure the animals are in the best — very, very best — of health."

David Field, zoological director

David Field, zoological director for the London Zoo, said that they are trying to ensure the best welfare for the animals.

The data collected by the zoo is sent to a zoological information management system or ZIMS, where zoos across the world share such information, Field said.

In addition to indicating an animal's overall well-being, regular weight checks and waist measurements can also help keepers detect pregnancies of endangered species. TELEGRAPH.CO.UK

Slippery squirrel no match for the power of Vaseline

A great man once said, "Nature finds a way." Granted, he was talking about theme-park dinosaurs resurrected by DNA magic, but there's no reason Jurassic Park rules can't apply to our own backyards. That adage brings us to this scrappy squirrel with a taste for ill-gotten birdseed that a garden full of vegetables just won't satisfy as well as a pole greased with Vaseline that isn't going to stop nature — except that it totally does. RICHARD CROUSE AND MARK BRESLIN

Daniel Radcliffe and Zoe Kazan star in The F Word. CONTRIBUTED

Synopsis

Called What If in the United States where The F Word title was seen as too salacious (in the movie the "F" stands for friend), this is the story of Wallace (Daniel Radcliffe), a loser in love who meets Chandry (Zoe Kazan), the girl of his dreams, at a party. She's charming, pretty, funny and has a live-in boyfriend. Like Harry and Sally before them, they must discover if men and women can just be friends.

The F Word.
Daniel Radcliffe and Zoe Kazan manage to create a sweet and relatable chemistry without getting too saccharine

Richard: Mark, enchanting, whimsical and sweet are words I could use to describe The F Word, and the film earns each and every one, but it is also more than that.

Director Michael Dowse doesn't allow the tone to get sugary and slip into saccharine mode.

He's aided by a smart and funny script by Elan Mastai, but it's Radcliffe and Kazan that drew me in.

The pair has chemistry to burn and their conversations have a ring of truth that don't feel contrived or rom-commy.

Mark: Richard. This is an incredibly sweet-hearted movie that will do nothing to alleviate the problems in the Middle East.

Nevertheless, the movie is about 25 per cent more realistic than most rom-coms and I was so grateful for that.

But I've never seen a movie where the characters were so polite to one another; no wonder they set it in Toronto.

RC: It's more realistic than most rom-coms, with some real romance and some actual laughs.

The once proud romantic comedy genre had been suffering form a bad case of the Katherine Heigls, but movies like this and 500 Days of Summer and Warm Bodies are persuasive attempts to reclaim the rom com from the Barrymore Method© and bring back the golden years when Harry could still meet Sally without all the annoying Heiglisms in between.

That it makes Toronto and Canada look sexy and romantic is just an added bonus.

MB: I was also grateful for the indie score and the way the characters looked a little mussed, with some visible pores and an occasional zit, even if they all sported impossibly cute and expensive eyewear.

Toronto does look sexy — although not dangerously sexy — but for a city that trumpets its multiculturalism, the cast and tone were lily-white. The lead was actually British!

Speaking of the lead, I liked Radcliffe in the role. You, Richard?

RC: I did. I thought he and Kazan made a cute couple.

There's more to Radcliffe than wizardry and battling "He-Who-Must-Not-Be-Named."

Breaking free of Harry Potter must have seemed daunting for the young actor, but he has proven in movies like this and Kill Your Darlings and The Woman in Black that he is versatile and won't be typecast.

I'm curious to see what he does next.

MB: I heard he was doing Vladimir in Waiting for Godot on Broadway, dressed as Osama Bin Laden.

Personally, I think he's too short for the role.

Who you gonna call?

Ghostbusters. It's been 30 years since Ivan Reitman seamlessly blended the supernatural and slapstick. Metro looks at how the film changed pop culture

CHRIS ALEXANDER
scene@metronews.ca

It's mind-bending to consider that it's been 30 years since the landmark supernatural comedy Ghostbusters was unleashed to theatres worldwide. Director Ivan Reitman's riotous big-budget blockbuster melded genre tropes of every cinematic persuasion to tell its tale of four grown men (co-writers Dan Akroyd and the late Harold Ramis, Bill Murray and Ernie Hudson, respectively) tapping and trapping spectral phenomena in the streets of New York, finding fame, fortune and eventually saving the planet. Critically adored and unabashedly crowd pleasing, Ghostbusters changed the landscape of 1980s pop-cinema, and in turn, irrevocably altered the way we watch mainstream movies.

Big laughs, bigger FX

Ghostbusters was the first notable "special effects comedy", in which mind blowing, state-of-the-art visual FX (conceived and executed by the great Richard Edlund) vie for screen time with conventional, slapstick farce. Ghostbusters defined that formula.

The mark of Murray

Of course, Bill Murray was already a star before Ghostbusters came to be, having appeared in Reitman's previous comedy hits Meatballs and Stripes, and the original run of Saturday Night Live. But Ghostbusters perfected the "Bill Murray Voodoo": a glib blend of deadpan, lazy lidded, caustic humour laced with good-natured smut. These qualities are alive in his Peter Venkman character (a role originally conceived for the late John Belushi) — traits that would cement Murray's status as one of Hollywood's most bankable comedy draws.

Have logo, will travel

Ghostbusters iconic "no ghost" logo is one of the most famous and internationally recognized in film history. Created by artist and producer Michael C. Gross, the logo was not only part of the opening credits (its visage served as the theatrical teaser poster art), but was also on the soundtrack album and, by the end of 1984, was blasted across millions of T-shirts all over the planet.

Video stole the cinema star

Ray Parker Jr.'s massively successful, Academy-award nominated theme song and its accompanying, star-studded, Reitman-directed video was in constant rotation on MTV even before Ghostbusters was released and was an essential tool in the film's branding. Every radio station on terra firma was spinning that damn song that year, everyone was singing it and that same formula — hit song and conceptual video — would be used for decades as a key component for studios looking to hard-sell their films.

The Stay Puft Marshmallow Man lumbers across the big screen next week as Ghostbusters is re-released to celebrateits 30th anniversary. CONTRIBUTED

Marshmallow apocalypse

A carry-over from Akroyd's original script (titled Ghostmashers), in which he and Belushi travelled through time killing creatures, Ghostbusters' climactic showdown featured our fearless quartet squaring off against a Godzilla-sized Stay Puft Marshmallow Man; a hulking 25-storey high hell-spawn dessert who, when decimated, erupts into torrents of hot s'more-ready goo. It's one of the daftest and most memorable moments in movie history and it could only work within the confines of Ghostbusters. Because of this, no other filmmaker has dared attempt to use a haunted, massive marshmallow as a villain. Yet ...

A morbid take on motherly love

Life After Beth.
Molly Shannon plays a mom thrilled to have a second chance with her undead daughter

Poor Zach. Minutes after his girlfriend Beth (Aubrey Plaza) kicks him to the curb, an accident befalls her and she dies. Unable to reconcile this loss, Zach (The Amazing Spider-Man 2's Dane DeHaan) begins hanging around Beth's parents' home, if for no other reason than to still feel as though he's part of her world. Things get extra complicated when Zach discovers Beth is not dead after all. Or rather, she's undead — a zombie. And though her parents are fully aware of their daughter's ghoulish condition, neither they nor Zach want their second chance spoiled, even when Beth begins to get…hungry.

Life After Beth is an amusing new comedy that also functions as an effective horror film, with its dark subtext of just how irrational grief can push us to extremes, never allowing the laughs to overtake it. That grief turned into blind hope is essayed perfectly by Beth's mother, played by former SNL stock player Molly Shannon, with her patented toothy smile barely concealing the broken matriarch beneath.

"She's overjoyed," the veteran actress says of the emotionally battered Mrs. Slocum.

"I mean, who would ask questions when their baby comes back. All the pictures you never took, the things you never said, it's a miracle and she knows it. So that's how we played it. We did it realistically and it was up to me to look for the truth in the character."

Playing Shannon's husband is none other than John C. Reilly, an actor whose crinkled face and permanent bed-head cues hilarity in myriad films like Walk Hard, The Prairie Home Companion and Step Brothers. And as Shannon explains, if it wasn't for Reilly, she wouldn't have had the chance to do what is, in essence, some of the best work of her career.

"John and I have been friends for years," says Shannon. "We met on Never Been Kissed and instantly made a connection. He's one of the funniest storytellers I've ever met and we just get along great. It was John who recommended me to the producers. We met for dinner and he was raving to me about the script, going off about how great it was. So he made it happen and we had such a good time making the film. It was like an arts camp."

Fun it may have been to make and fun it is to watch. But again, no matter how many absurdist laughs blast from the screen, Life After Beth is first and foremost a zombie film and an effective one at that. But when pressed as to why films of this kind continue to be popular, Shannon is somewhat in the dark.

"Oh my, I don't really know why people like zombies. All I do know is that I really, really hate death. It sucks. And you always hope that you might go on after you die.

"Maybe that has something to do with it?"

John C. Reilly and Molly Shannon are the parents of the undead Beth in Life After Beth, opening Sept. 5. CONTRIBUTED

"I have never let my schooling interfere with my education."
› Mark Twain: Repartee Radical
Truer words were never said. Mark Twain wrote his own ticket to a fascinating literary life after leaving conventional school at the tender age of 12. His surprisingly unorthodox education ensued . . . drawing from life experiences, and living in libraries after hours.
We're ahead of our time, too — offering you a world-recognized education where school doesn't get in the way. And you can quote us on that.

Orange is still black, but is it comedy?

Emmy out of water.

Loose rules have allowed dramatic shows to switch categories this year

If it walks like a drama and talks like a drama but calls itself a comedy, that's just fine with the Emmy Awards.

But the audience for Monday's ceremony (8 p.m. EDT, NBC) may be confused when, say, the Netflix women's prison saga Orange Is the New Black pops up as a nominee for best comedy series.

"The Emmys are being loosey-goosey about category placement," said Tom O'Neil, author of The Emmys reference book and organizer of the Gold Derby website.

The tactic isn't frivolous. Shows are angling to better their odds of winning TV's top honour, which can bring prestige and more viewers.

Emmy bragging rights are another matter. With the explosion of cable and online content, traditional broadcast networks are finding themselves shut out or lightly represented in major categories, including best drama and comedy series.

NBC late-night host and ceremony host Seth Meyers is ready to take advantage of broadcasting's plight.

"That's a thing that I think everyone in the audience will be aware of, and being someone who's on a broadcast network makes it a lot more fun to make jokes about than if I were someone on the cable side lording it over everyone," he said.

The decision by Orange to compete as a comedy despite its bleak setting puts pressure on four-time best-comedy winner Modern Family. The ABC series — vying for a record-tying fifth win (with Frasier) against an Internet newcomer — may look a lot less modern to Emmy voters.

Another apparent fish-out-of-water is Showtime's dysfunctional family series Shameless. After coming up empty as a drama contender, it jumped to the comedy pool.

Other comedy contenders are The Big Bang Theory, Louie, Silicon Valley and Veep.

Shifting categories isn't unprecedented. In the 1950s, Father Knows Best moved between comedy and drama and captured trophies in each, and Moonlighting did the same in the 1980s, O'Neil said. The academy tightened the rules in 2009, but obviously didn't make them ironclad.

HBO's True Detective is unmistakably a drama, but one with miniseries trappings: a close-ended story and two movie-star leads (Matthew McConaughey, Woody Harrelson) committed to just one season.

Because of a TV academy rule involving the show's Writers Guild of America credit, however, it was eligible to compete as a series.

If True Detective nabs the top drama trophy, it would deny Breaking Bad a farewell hug for its final season. A McConaughey victory as best drama actor also would keep Bryan Cranston from tying Dennis Franz's record of four wins in the category.

Others competing for the best drama trophy are Game of Thrones, Downton Abbey, House of Cards and Mad Men.

Embracing feminism

The other "F" word.
Women need to give themselves a break, says Bad Feminist author Roxane Gay

EMILY LAURENCE
Metro in New York City

Roxane Gay JAY GRABIEC

Few people can spark a heated debate quite like Roxane Gay. Can you like Robin Thicke and still be a feminist? Can you hate Girls and be one? Whenever there's a big moment in pop culture, Gay's 100,000 Tumblr followers and 24,800 Twitter followers are eager to hear her thoughts on what it means on a deeper level, if it means anything at all.

The writer just released her book, Bad Feminist, a collection of some of her best essays about recent pop culture. Because this much-misunderstood "F" word is still such a loaded term, we talked to Gay about setting some of the myths about feminism straight.

Myth 1: Feminists can't listen to rap or watch The Bachelor

For the record, Gay loves The Bachelor. "I embrace the label of bad feminist because I am human. I am messy. I am not trying to be an example," Gay says in Bad Feminist. One of the reasons Gay decided to release her book is to tell women to give themselves a break. "It's important to have high standards, but it's also important to recognize our humanity and that sometimes we're not going to get it right," she tells us. "We can be feminists and we can be imperfect in our feminism. I think what matters is intention."

Myth 2: There's nothing left for feminists to fight for

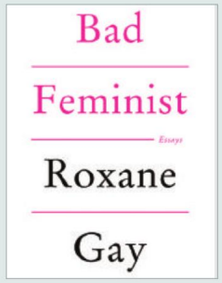
Gay says one of the reasons why she thinks many young women are hesitant to call themselves feminists is because they think we've reached a point where men and women are equal. "We're no longer thinking the struggle is real because we're no longer fighting for literacy or the right to vote," she explains. But she says that even though the fight is more subtle, it's still important. "We're fighting for equal pay. We're fighting for reproductive freedom. We're fighting for the rights of transgender women and queer women. The fights are different, but equally important."

Myth 3: Feminists are automatic role models

Gay may have a big following, but she insists that she is not a role model because everyone is human and bound to mess up. "People who are placed on pedestals are expected to pose, perfectly. They get knocked off when they f— it up. I regularly f— it up. Consider me already knocked off," she says in her book. Instead, she urges people to keep feminism simple. Believing that men and women are equals and should be treated as such, but also spending Saturday night grinding with guys to degrading music is imperfect feminism, and that's perfectly OK.

Vested interest

More with Roxane Gay



It's interesting that we're still at a point where feminism has to be defined every time it's talked about.
Yes. It's shocking that we are still trying to explain what feminism is, how it functions and how it works in the service of women. It's also a shame that people are resistant to what feminism actually is and they are still holding on to really antiquated notions as to what feminism is. … It's hard for people to find common ground on any issue, so it's not surprising that feminism is another issue where we struggle with that.

Who are your favourite celebrity "bad feminists"?
I really love Bette Midler. I think she does some really wonderful things and she's very much invested in the quality of women. Susan Sarandon, who I don't even think identifies as a feminist, I think is just badass at how she moves through the world. Michelle Obama is a great feminist. If I had to pick a favourite, it would be her, because she's so clear on what she wants to do and why. She's very full of good intention and follow through.

Do you think it's OK for someone to not want to be a feminist?
I definitely struggle with women who say they are not a feminist and don't need feminism because I think they don't realize what feminism has made possible in their lives. But we all get to choose how we identify ourselves. They have a right and I'm going to fight for them, anyway. Whether or not you're a feminist, I'm very much invested in the equality of all women.

3 songs for the weekend

Sound Check

ALAN CROSS

An homage to Pan, a well-named band and, er, a trio of Japanese schoolgirls singing extreme metal.

Gimme Chocolate/ Babymetal

If you haven't yet been infected with Babymetal, then it's time you got with the program: three young Japanese schoolgirls dancing and singing some very extreme metal.

Rezlord/ Cairo Knife Fight

Much respect for the name; that's one of the best of the year so far. Second, this New Zealand duo may have you thinking about Alice in Chains, just a bit.

No Harm/ Tara Rice

I quote: "A celebration of Pan and all of the things he symbolized before ... the propaganda machine turned him into the devil. ... love, music, free will, knowledge, dancing, sex and all the good stuff."

See that symbol? It means you can scan this image with your Metro News app to listen to Alan's recommended songs this week.

Video game review

Name. Hohokum

For. PS4/PS3/PS Vita

Rated. Everyone 10+

This deliriously psychedelic, pop art experience is indeed a game, but you'll need to relax and explore its abstract worlds just to find the puzzles. It reminds me of The Beatles' Yellow Submarine, with its vibrant worlds, strange machines, and multicoloured people. As a painted snake, you glide, give rides, and explore, and try to figure out what's going on. Things grow, bloom, flood, and explode to a joyous groove. It's an animated masterpiece, but its ethereal confusion will either delight you or frustrate you. KRIS ABEL

Justin Bieber GETTY IMAGES

Party at Bieber's house! No, not that one. The other one

OK, yes, Justin Bieber did in fact rent a sprawling, 16,000-square-foot Hollywood Hills mansion with its own nightclub built into it — and goes for $29,000 a month — but he's not actually going to live there. Instead, Bieber "is only using the Hollywood Hills rental to throw parties," according to Radar Online. "After Justin's house was raided earlier this year, he vowed never to be caught in a similar situation and doesn't want random people in his home. So Justin decided to rent a house just so he could throw parties. He might end up sleeping there from time to time, but still has the Beverly Hills condo and will use that as his base." Well, as long as he has options.

OUR TAKE ON THE WORLD OF CELEBRITIES

The Word

That thing about Zac and Michelle's summer fling — it's so over

Ah, the summer romance. So intense, so fleeting. With Labour Day fast approaching, it should come as little surprise that the incredibly surprising romance between Zac Efron and Michelle Rodriguez has quickly and quietly come to a "very mutual" end after two months, according to Us Weekly. "Michelle is going to do her own thing. Zac knew about her when he got with her. He's very into her, though, and perhaps more than she's into him," a source says. Now this celebrity gossip curio can fade into memory like so many bizarre fever dreams, until one day you'll mention it at an intimate Tupperware party and everyone will think you made it up. Because Zac Efron and Michelle Rodriguez dating? That hardly makes any sense at all. Surely, you must be joking.

Pharrell Williams and his outsized hat. AFP

Hat gets even more than its Pharrell share of fame

The hat that sparked a social media sensation when worn by Pharrell Williams to the Grammy Awards earlier this year is now set to go on display at the Newseum in Washington, D.C. The "Buffalo Hat" proved to be such a talking point the singer later sold it on eBay, where it was snapped up by fast food chain Arby. The restaurant brand drew attention to the similarities between the outsized headgear and its own logo at the time, tweeting "Hey @Pharrell, can we have our hat back?" After being retweeted more than 80,000 times, Pharrell's good-natured Twitter reply — "Y'all tryna start a roast beef?" — helped the hat go viral. Now the newsworthy accessory has been loaned to the Newseum, where it will go on show this week for a limited time. AFP

Popsicles. Corn dogs. Skewers. Nothing says summertime fun quite like food served on a stick. Agree with me? Then you'll love this recipe.

Marinade
1. In blender, purée all ingredients. Pour the marinade into a bowl. Add the meat and toss to coat. Cover and let marinate in the refrigerator for 3 to 6 hours.

Salsa
1. In a bowl, combine all the ingredients. Season with salt and pepper. Cover and refrigerate for 1 hour.

Onion Papillote
1. Preheat the grill, setting the burners to high.

2. Meanwhile, in a bowl, combine the sugar and salt. Add the onions and toss to coat. Place the onions in the centre of a sheet of lightly oiled aluminum foil. Close the foil, sealing well. Bake for about 35 minutes or until the onions are tender and lightly browned. Set aside.

Guacamole
1. In a bowl, mash avocado with a fork. Add the remaining ingredients and stir to blend. Season with salt and pepper.

This recipe serves eight. COURTESY RICARDOCUISINE.COM

Ingredients

Marinade
- 3 tbsp (45 ml) pineapple juice
- 1/2 jalapeno, seeded and chopped
- 1 clove garlic
- 1/2 lime, the juice and grated zest
- 2 tbsp (30 ml) vegetable oil
- 2 tsp (10 ml) chili powder
- 1/4 tsp (1 ml) salt
- Tabasco sauce, to taste
- 1 1/2 lb (675 g) beef, cut into 32 cubes

Salsa
- 3 plum tomatoes, diced
- 1/2 jalapeno, seeded and chopped
- 1/4 cup (60 ml) red onion chopped
- 1 lime, the juice only
- 1/2 cup (125 ml) cilantro, chopped

Onion Papillote
- 2 tsp (10 ml) sugar
- 1 tsp (5 ml) salt
- 4 onions, cut into thick slices
- 1 tbsp (15 ml) olive oil

Guacamole
- 2 avocados, peeled and seeded
- 1 tbsp (15 ml) red onion, finely chopped
- 1 jalapeno pepper, seeded and finely chopped
- 1/2 lime, the juice only
- 8 wooden skewers, soaked in water for 30 minutes
- 1 yellow bell pepper, cut into 24 cubes
- 8 7-inch (18 cm) tortillas
- Salt and pepper
- Sour cream

Skewers
1. Drain meat. Thread 4 cubes of meat on each skewer, alternating with 3 pieces of bell pepper. Season with salt, pepper.

2. Cook the beef skewers for about 1 minute on all four sides, for medium-rare.

3. Warm the tortillas on the grill. Place the skewers on hot tortillas and remove the sticks. Place the toppings in the centre of the table and let your guests garnish their fajitas to their taste. FOLLOW RICARDO ON SOCIAL MEDIA AND ON RICARDOCUISINE.COM OR SUBSCRIBE TO HIS MAGAZINE'S UP-COMING ENGLISH EDITION LAUNCHING THIS SEPTEMBER!

Liquid Assets

From the roots up

LIQUID ASSETS
Peter Rockwell
@therealwineguy
liquidassets@eastlink.ca

Grapes are the Brad Pitts of the wine world. Sexy and memorable, it's their names that get top billing on your favourite bottles.

Vines are relegated to the supporting cast. Though they do all the heavy lifting, the spotlight is always on their fruit.

With age comes respect and really old vines are starting to get attention. Mature vines produce fewer grapes. With less berries to focus on, the juice of what gets picked from elderly vines is way more concentrated.

Keeping geriatric crops in the ground is not very cost-effective, so many winemakers systematically switch them out for younger plantings to keep production stable. Spain, Australia and California have some senior root stock and have embraced the depth, complexity and nuance of their output.

California's zinfandel flourishes in its old age, and the 2012 Gnarly Head Old Vine Zinfandel ($16.99 - $19.99) is a lush, ultra ripe red with a creamy undercurrent of cherry and chocolate that loves grilled meats. PRICES REFLECT THE RANGE ACROSS THE COUNTRY. Schmooze

Date: Aug. 22
Location: Maison Mercer, 15 Mercer St.

There are only a few Fridays left to get your schmooze on at one of the hottest after-work parties in the city. Notable has teamed up with Maison Mercer to make this Friday's the most memorable yet. Picture complimentary barbeque from 5-6:30 p.m., happy hour drink specials until 11 p.m. (think pitchers of mojitos and sangria), and a view and vibe better than any in the city.

Waterfront Beach Festival

Date: Aug. 23
Location: HTO Park

There's now only one week of August left. If you haven't started panicking, you should. Luckily, the Waterfront Beach Festival offers a chance to forget that winter is coming and get out to the beach while the getting's still good. There's simply no better way to close off the month than with a diverse lineup of international DJs, a fully licensed shoreline setting, and sand between your toes.

Arcade Fire

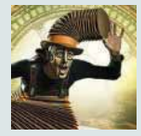
Date: Aug. 29
Location: Molson Canadian Amphitheatre

This is arguably the biggest band in Canadian history putting on an arena show that includes formal attire, confetti, and a catalogue of songs few current bands can match. If you don't have tickets already, we suggest you sell everything you own to get one. Except your high school prom dress of course — you'll still need that.

Buskerfest

Date: Aug. 21-24
Location: Downtown Yonge Neighbourhood

It's like going to the circus — everywhere. This is one of Ontario's largest street performers festivals, with more than 75 acts performing for three days throughout downtown. Hosted by Epilepsy Ontario, Buskerfest is also their largest fundraiser of the year and raises huge amounts of money for their cause. So whether you're into magicians, music, clowns, contortionists, or just supporting the community, we suggest you hit the streets today.



Cirque Du Soleil

Date: Aug. 28 - Oct. 26
Location: Under the Grand Chapiteau at The Port Lands

It's always a big deal when the largest theatrical producer in the world comes out with a new show.(Especially when that producer happens to be Canadian). Cirque has been blowing our collective minds for years, and their new production, KURIOS – Cabinet of Curiosities, promises to continue that tradition. Armed with the slogan "reality is relative," we can honesty say we have no idea what to expect — in the best way possible.

IRIE Music Festival

Date: Aug. 23-24
Location: Mississauga Celebration Square

As the summer begins to wind down, so too do the music festivals. And while the IRIE Music Festival already hit Nathan Phillips Square earlier in August, it returns for a second run to celebrate diversity and African-Canadian culture in Mississauga. With hundreds of thousands of fans in attendance in previous years, and a range of music genres covered, IRIE is definitely worth heading west for.

MLSE's Leiweke is indeed on way out

Sixteen-month reign. CEO plans to stay for another year or until another chief is found

Maple Leaf Sports & Entertainment has cleared up the uncertainty surrounding president and chief executive officer Tim Leiweke's long-term future with the company.

He will stay in the position until June 30, 2015, or until a new CEO is found, MLSE said Thursday in a statement.

"Under Tim's leadership, MLSE has made a number of key moves to strengthen our organization on the path to championship success," said MLSE chairman Larry Tanenbaum. "We look forward to working closely with Tim to build on this foundation and further accelerate our momentum as we seek a new leader for MLSE."

The Toronto-based sports organization counts the NHL's Maple Leafs, NBA's Raptors, AHL's Marlies and Toronto FC of Major League Soccer among its properties. The search for Leiweke's successor is underway, MLSE said in the statement.

"My job is to change the culture and get it headed in the right direction," said Leiweke.

CP Women's Open

Ryu leads with course record

So Yeon Ryu set a course record with a 9-under 63 to take the lead at the Canadian Pacific Women's Open after one round on Thursday.

Ryu finished with nine birdies Thursday at the London Hunt and Country Club to take a one-stroke lead over fellow South Korean Na Yeon Choi, who chipped in three times during an impressive morning round.

Swede Anna Nordqvist, who was playing with Ryu in the afternoon, was alone in third at 7 under.

Inbee Park, coming off a victory in last week's LPGA Championship and Choi were part of a group at 6 under along with Azahara Munoz, Danielle Kang and Xi Yu Lin.

Van Pelt takes one-shot lead

Bo Van Pelt had just the round he needed to start the FedEx Cup playoffs. Rory McIlroy finally had a day off.

With no guarantee of playing beyond this week, Van Pelt combined a great start and a great finish for a 6-under 65 to take a one-shot lead Thursday at The Barclays. He is No. 104 in the FedEx Cup. Only the top 100 advance to the next tournament.

McIlroy is the top seed after his amazing summer of winning two majors and a World Golf Championship. But a week off to celebrate gave him a 3-over 74, his worst start in two months. THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Rays need just one hit to spoil Price's return

MLB. Former Cy Young winner loses 1-0 decision against his old team in Tampa Bay

The Tampa Bay Rays overcame a masterful performance by David Price.

Price allowed only a first-inning RBI triple to Brandon Guyer in his first start against his former team, but Alex Cobb and the Tampa Bay Rays beat the Detroit Tigers 1-0 Thursday to avoid a three-game sweep.

"It's weird," Guyer said. "I've never seen a win like that."

Ben Zobrist reached on a throwing error by shortstop Eugenio Suarez and scored on Guyer's hit. Price then retired his final 23 batters, nine on strikeouts, to finish an eight-inning complete game.

Tigers starting pitcher David Price allowed just one hit against his former team but still lost 1-0. BRIAN BLANCO/GETTY IMAGES

Cobb (9-6) scattered two hits, walked two and struck out six over seven innings, improving to 7-0 in his last 10 starts. After Brad Boxberger worked out of an eighth-inning jam, Jake McGee got three outs for his 14th save, completing a four-hitter.

Price, traded to the Tigers as part of a three-team deal on July 31, got a standing ovation while taking his warm-up throws before the bottom of the first.

"That's probably as good as I've pitched in a game that went my way," Price said. "It's the least amount of hits I've ever given up."

The Jiggy is up. Giguere announces retirement

The goaltender known as "Jiggy" is stepping away from the net.

Jean-Sebastien Giguere announced his retirement Thursday after 16 NHL seasons in which he won 262 games, a Conn Smythe Trophy and a Stanley Cup championship.

The Colorado Avalanche say Giguere made his decision in Quebec while with the Blainville-Boisbriand Armada hockey team. He's part owner of the Quebec Major Junior Hockey League squad.

"His achievements speak for themselves, from winning the Stanley Cup to winning the Conn Smythe. Jiggy was always a top-notch goaltender," team executive Joe Sakic said in a statement. "He was also a very important part of our team during the past three seasons, providing veteran leadership and stability in net. We wish him and his family the best of luck."

Giguere served as Semyon Varlamov's backup last season in Hall of Fame goaltender Patrick Roy's first season behind the bench. The team made it back to the post-season for the first time since 2010.

THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

The resumé

The 37-year-old Giguere is best known for his time with the Anaheim Ducks. He led the team to two appearances in the Stanley Cup final, capturing the Conn Smythe Trophy in defeat in 2003 and hoisting the Cup in 2007.

- Giguere also played for Hartford, Calgary, Toronto and Colorado.

Horoscopes by Sally Brompton

♈ Aries
March 21 - April 20
Do what others expect of you today, even if it means you have to put your own plans on hold. Make sure loved ones get all the encouragement they need.

♉ Taurus
April 21 - May 21
An unpleasant issue will have to be dealt with today. Of course, if you had sorted it out when the situation first arose several months ago you would not be in this position now.

♊ Gemini
May 22 - June 21
A money matter you thought has been resolved will be up in the air again over the next few days. If you move fast, you can be the one who benefits most.

♋ Cancer
June 22 - July 23
You know there are no shortcuts to success but with Mars, planet of action, moving in your favour now you have what it takes to reach the top.

♌ Leo
July 24 - Aug. 23
What made no sense yesterday will make perfect sense today, because your way of looking at it has widened. There is an important lesson here: never think you know it all.

♍ Virgo
Aug. 24 - Sept. 23
You can't protect those you love from the consequences of their actions. Today you'll be convinced that, as far as one individual is concerned, you've got to let them do their thing.

♎ Libra
Sept. 24 - Oct. 23
Today's events will turn the views you have about someone completely on their head. The good news is you will be able to forge a new understanding.

♏ Scorpio
Oct. 24 - Nov. 22
No one has the right to tell you what to believe. If they try, you must come down on them. Having said that, you may find something you used to believe no longer seems certain.

♐ Sagittarius
Nov. 23 - Dec. 21
Nothing happens truly by chance and if you keep that in mind today you may find yourself in a position where you are able to gain an advantage over your rivals.

♑ Capricorn
Dec. 22 - Jan. 20
Something will happen over the next few days that forces you to take centre stage, where everyone can see you. You may not want to be a star but the planets are making it happen.

♒ Aquarius
Jan. 21 - Feb. 19
Whatever you think is wrong with your life is not as bad as you fear, so stop worrying and look for ways you can bring the smile back to your face.

♓ Pisces
Feb. 20 - March 20
You have the power to turn negative situations to your advantage. You will achieve more if you partner up with like-minded people.
